Abstract

Background: A career is a profession that each individual pursues through specific training, which takes a long time. As the students grow up within the school, they begin to pursue a career that they aspire to. In this generation, technology is prevalent, and children are known as frequent users of the internet. Young people are watching numerous vloggers and students, to be precise. As they grow old, the fondness of watching vloggers on the internet increases. Their interests in their chosen career change due to the ideal lifestyle they have seen online. Instead of following a practical and a permanent career, they show interest in pursuing another path to be an internet vlogger. Method: This study is qualitative in nature. Furthermore, it utilized a phenomenological research design to understand the students' career in vlogging. The study aims to answer the question: "What made young people, specifically students, change their job interest for their future?" Findings: This study refers explicitly to altering student vloggers' academic pathways in life. This study revealed how the students managed their time, discovered which priority they valued most, came up with content ideas, and how fame affects their daily lives. Conclusion: Vloggers being given the platform have influenced students and the younger generation to be more open and have a broader perspective on choosing careers and opens them to new acquired knowledge and interests. Recommendation: This study recommends to increase the number of respondents/students to give people a further understanding about the experiences and career path of the student vloggers.

Keywords: Career Path; Student Vloggers; Student's Lifestyle

1.   Introduction

In this study, the researchers would like to understand the ways of student vloggers and how vlogging could alter their academic pathway. The researchers have conducted an in-depth understanding of the students' academics and their career pathways. In today's generation, social media has begun to create a big impact in everyone's lives especially the people who are in need to connect with their fellow, loved ones, and even with mentors. Social media gives a big advantage to the younger generation especially the students, wherein they use it more often when looking for an answer for their queries. It is the fastest medium to get information and get your message across too. Social media keeps people around the world connected and bonded through applications that are easy and useful.

Nowadays, teenagers are raised in an era of smartphones and do not remember a time before social media was created. Most teenagers are active on social media starting at the age of 10. (Westenberg, W.M., 2016) Social media expands our knowledge such as everyday life-hacks, being able to learn about the issues and happenings towards our homeland and entertainment. This platform can educate us about basic knowledge and be put to use, social media also serves as a virtual platform to teach, educate, and be heard by a multitude. Students being one if not the main users of social media open and educate the younger generation to the possibilities with the acquired knowledge they gain from the social network.

Vlog is an activity in which people create a video about themselves sharing about daily activities, personal life, their interest, tourist destination, food, and many other aspects that possibly attract people. Vloggers provide valuable information about products and services such as online-shoppers and Digital stores which usually need more information due to the possibility of the product or service claimed to be bogus. They have the potential to influence consumer perceptions and purchase decisions. They are also perceived to be more authentic and more accessible. Some users create online content daily. They share their experiences and opinions about everything; from product reviews, services, and baby advice to boyfriend problems, homework, makeup, and game tutorials.

Often starting as a hobby, creating online content on a personal blog or channel can become a full-time job. By creating content daily, large communities are built up with thousands of loyal followers. (Wilma Westenberg, 2016). The video can be an effective way to get students" attraction and increase their motivation. On the other side, with video, the teaching-learning process is more flexible, accessible, and memorable and video can bring new information. Skills in education are very important so that the process of transfer of knowledge can be intended under the intended purpose.

2. Method

2.1 Research Design

The qualitative research base on in-depth, analyzation and collection of non-numerical data. It provides insights towards an issue or hypotheses for potential quantitative research. The three most frequent qualitative research methods are participant observation, in-depth interviews, and focus groups. This study focuses on altering a student vloggers' pathway towards their academics. The researchers concluded to conduct an in-depth interview to have accurate and specific answers which would affect the outcome. Using the interview procedure would give enough witnesses to confirm that the respondents' answers are facts using the voice record platform about student vloggers.

2.2 Research Locus and Sample

This study was conducted and chosen to be performed in Philippine School Doha. This study was undertaken and desired to serve in Philippine School Doha. It is the most convenient and safest location for the study to be held. Additionally, the research advisers have officially approved it, responsible for mentoring the researchers to proceed with this study.

The researchers' interviewees are primarily based on student vloggers from Philippine School Doha since it is the most practical and closest interview.

The respondents for this IMRAD research paper were chosen based on the researcher's knowledge of their vlogging in social media, specifically only student vloggers who have proven themselves as student vloggers. The researchers sought the number of student vloggers known in the school before the conduct of the study. A form of consent was given to the respondents for record and approval as a part of the study.

To keep the interviewees' and researchers' professionalism, The researcher's distributed a robofoto document together with a consent letter to the vloggers. The information yielded from the robotfoto was analyzed thoroughly. Verbatim transcription of recorded interviews was accomplished to form the field text. Identification of significant statements was made using the Cool and Warm analysis (De Guzman et al., 2019).

2.3 Data Collection and Ethical Consideration

The researchers have followed an inductive approach in developing themes (Vallesteros, 2018; Rosima, 2018) to have the data gathered analyzed by the researchers; (1) repeatedly listening to the recording of the interview to have a deeper understanding of the perception on the topic ; (2) the emic transcription was made by transcribing the data by collecting the data through word-per-word in the recording; (3) converting the emic transcription into etic based on what was understood by the researchers based on the participants' responses; (4) placing the formulated meanings into different categories, putting them into their corresponding thought units, and a cluster of themes with the use of a dendrogram to show similarities of the data gathered; (5) formulating the simulacrum as a visual representation from the findings concluded.

2.4 Mode of Analysis

This research concluded to conduct a deductive approach. The researchers have gathered to complete the following:(1) Scheduling face-to-face and online interviews and listening to audio recordings. (2) transcribing the respondents' word for word results,(3) Converting the answers from emic to etic for better understanding, (4) Sorting given data into categories into a cluster of themes via dendrogram. (5) creating a simulacrum for visual representations.

3. Findings

This phenomenological study determined how a student's interest in their future career paths shifted to social media from their original career plan relative to the central question: "What made young people, specifically students, change their job interest for their future?" Furthermore, the study focuses on the specific question: "If they pursue becoming a vlogger, what would be the benefits and the setbacks?" Having to decide for their future careers.

Figure 3 shows the simulacrum focused on three major themes: Time management, Priorities, and Development. These themes show how the students can manage both study and career.

Priorities

Representations of priorities usually focus on dealing with something important before other things. Realizing which duty would be our top priority can be quite challenging, especially when balancing the major and minor tasks. for instance, influencing a group of people or audience while focusing on academics. Priorities also come with managing tasks, balancing different duties. In this case, practicality through academics wherein academics is the top priority.

The responses that we have received from the respondents state that they will prioritize their education over vlogging. They affirmed with these replies:

"Video editing is hard, but the importance of your work can balance it by setting your priorities, late video uploads are acceptable, but late in passing school works isn't." (R1)

As a senior of this generation, multiple media networks and gadgets have evolved, which gives us additional distractions to disregard our priorities, such as academics. However, it is the students' decision towards their responsibilities and which The responses we have received from the respondents state that they will prioritize:

"I prioritize my school work before spending time making videos, which gives me more time and effort." (R4)

"It's their priority to do which is more important, editing videos or pursuing their academics." (R1)

Managing their tasks

 Aside from prioritizing which tasks would be most important, managing them would be the key to having an effective and positive outcome towards their academic pathway. For each student, they each have their methods in managing priorities, such as the respondents' statements:

"Prioritizing the important and valuable time for you, if you focus on your studies, you have to prioritize it." (R4)

"It is during my school activities and time with friends. You have the option to add on your priorities as long as you can manage them wisely." (R3)

"I do not focus on posting on social media, but I am more focused on my studies." (R5)

Balancing Different duties

 Balancing and prioritizing education over something that you are passionate about can be quite pressuring. However, realizing the major and minor tasks helps narrow down and lessen the piled up stress and work does. The respondents claimed:

"You should be willing to challenge yourself. Handling your priority one at a time, thus, this will not hinder your other" (R3)

"Prioritizing the important and valuable time for you, if you focus on your studies you have to prioritize it."(R4)

"It is during my school activities and time with friends. You have the option to add on your priorities as long as you can manage them wisely." (R3)

Time Management

 Time management has always been a vital factor for achieving success in life. In daily life, every human being has different priorities and schedules. Following a proper plan implies that they have managed their time well. In everyday life, every work has its importance. Time management helps in organizing a routine that reduces complications in life and maintains balance by increasing productivity. Students are the building blocks of the development and prosperity of a nation. Students need to manage their time correctly to effectively support their activities and daily routine, which helps them achieve their goals. the respondents affirmed:

"I control vlogging activities in academics by thinking which I will have to focus first." (R1)

"Focusing on your priorities such as your academics rather than editing or filming your content." (R1)

"It is during my school activities and time with friends. You have the option to add on your priorities as long as you can manage them wisely." (R3)

Compatibility in Time

 It can help the student vloggers prioritize tasks and be able to do some school work, projects, activities, and assignments on time, to be able to plan on uploading a video on YouTube and to set aside some time for future projects or contents. By balancing their time and creating time frames. The respondents claimed:

"By practicing time management for balancing their academic performance and creating time frames for focusing between school and creating content and videos." (R2)

"For me, having a planner and managing your time between school and filming your videos for backups." (R4)

"Managing time when to do homework and balance the time not just in school but also in peers." (R4)

"Creating time frames will help track free times to create and film videos." (R2)

"I would start with my school works, and during my free time, I would gather ideas by watching videos from the internet to display for my viewers to enjoy." (R3)

Dedication

Setting perfect Time management for students is a big challenge especially these days because everywhere we look can give us distractions. This is where dedication comes in hand because with this the student vloggers would be able to balance their time wisely The respondents have claimed with these responses:

"For me, vlogging does not consume that much time since I do not record every day. Dedication would lead vloggers to balance their time well."(R4)

"Vlogging doesn't consume time that much and I don't film everyday so it doesn't affect my performance in school. A dedicated person could balance their time, vlogging and studying." (R4)

Commitment

Working with a vlogger is the main advantage because students are far more openly connected to other students and trust them. A student vlogger may speak and provide input from their peers' viewpoint in ways that engage on social and private levels. Students want to learn from others in many ways, and student vloggers give that forum.

Being a student vlogger will require time management and creativity. Having strategies to maintain time management to balance academics and social media life is necessary for this topic. Respondents have stated here:

"It helps you develop your creativity in every aspect." (R1)

"It would improve on how they manage their time." (R3)

"Yes, they can use their creativity in their classes." (R2)

"The modern education system is more innovative and interactive hence tend to use filming as a source for creativity." (R5)

"We cannot just go on only one decision because there will be some sort of dispute on whose fault it is on making the bad decision." (R2)

Development

As they become mindful of their priorities and manage their time wisely, they discover these improvements which lead to unlocking their inner creativity as a vlogger. Along with the student vloggers' goal of having a stabled academic grades and a balanced passion, the amount of effort and perseverance must be consistent to handle being focused into different priorities

"To maintain their image, they must be consistent in being innovative. " (R2)

"Be consistent and find what is easy for you." (R5)

"Mistakes are parts of improvement, learn the limits of being a vlogger to fulfill and develop your skills time to time. " (R1)

"Focus on yourself rather than the negative comments that would degrade you." (R3)

"Depends on the viewers being yourself can show uniqueness and they will accept" (R4)

Logically speaking, students' confidence in Qatar compared to the Philippines has a vast difference. The mindset of people here in Qatar is more open-minded. At first, being new to these things does bring struggles but at the end of the day, these aspiring student vloggers will gain fame and can have a big impact in their everyday life.

"They will be more friendly and active because they will gain more fans. " (R1)

"Yes, they will become comfortable in front of the camera. " (R2)

" Yes, they would gain higher self-confidence." (R3)

"Yes, you can communicate in public and your confidence will improve." (R4)

" Socializing is normal, everybody is always interacting with people on the internet or in person." (R5)

Adapting Consistency

Discovering ways to be consistent in your actions enables you to be true to yourself and build up to interact with others. Carrying out promises you make to yourself, for example, to study, to upload videos, to make future content, to commit to an action, and growth can develop your consistency.

"To maintain their image, they must be consistent in being innovative." (R2)

"Be consistent and find what is easy for you." (R5)

"Focus on yourself rather than the negative comments that would degrade you." (R3)

Boosting Self-Confidence

Self-confidence is about believing in yourself. It opens a door and encourages students to take risks, express their creativity in the classroom and on the internet.

A self-confident student vlogger is more likely to be optimistic and motivated and have a "can-do" rather than a "can't do" attitude in studying and vlogging.

"They will be more friendly and active because they will gain more fans." (R1)

"Yes, they will become comfortable in front of the camera." (R2)

"Yes, they would gain higher self-confidence." (R3)

"Yes, you can communicate in public, and your confidence will improve." (R4)

"Socializing is normal, and everybody is always interacting with people on the internet or in person." (R5)

Improve Creativity and Aspiration

Creativity is the most challenging thinking skill to acquire and also the most sought-after. We value it in our music, entertainment, technology, and other aspects of our existence. We appreciate and yearn for it because it enriches our understanding and can make life easier. (Ben Johnson, 2019), Self-confidence helps students vloggers be more approachable on the internet to gain fame in school; It can make them work on innovative activity. By aspirations, we mean the things students and vloggers hope to achieve for themselves in the future. To meet their aspirations about careers someday. Raising aspirations will also improve your attainment.

"Mistakes are parts of improvement. Learn the limits of being a vlogger to fulfill and develop your skills time to time." (R1)

"Depends on the viewers being yourself can show uniqueness and they will accept" (R4)

4. Discussion

This phenomenological study determined how a student's interest in their future career paths shifted to social media from their original career plan; this is relative to the central question: "What made young people, specifically students, change their job interest for their future?" Furthermore, the study focuses on the specific question: "If they pursue becoming a vlogger, what would be the benefits and the setbacks?" Having to decide for their future careers.

Priorities

It's hard to be a high school student as is, let alone as a vlogger. It's not always clear what is most important to you and what needs to be most important. But, to discover your priorities, you need to try things. (Platt, 2018). This section would lead to an in-depth explanation for our discussion. We are tackling the first central theme, Priorities. Priority is a thing that is regarded as more important than others. In an individual's time, assignment. It is common for all students to have struggles in this aspect since students often have to balance school, family, and social life altogether. Every student is different, and while some can juggle all of the various aspects of being involved, having a job, and doing well in school, some are not.

Though not ideal, the students who struggle to keep up with their school work may need to cut back on their work hours or the hours they put into clubs and other activities. Before complaining about your child's teachers, grades, homework, or lack of time because of those three on social media, think about where you or your child could cut back on other activities to make time for their free education. (Columnist, 2016)

Managing their task

Managing tasks is a big part of priorities because with these things can be done efficiently and productively as said by (Rinkesh Kukreja, 2020) "Organizing tasks and using your time effectively is the technique to lower stress levels and improve your productivity." In school, endless tasks are given by the educators, there are times when students start to work on the tasks and there is an instance wherein the task is not completed. This is caused by not having priorities.

"For anything from reading an assignment to preparing for an upcoming quiz, students may use the additional time wisely. It's crazy how much time you can add up to a couple of minutes here and there, and what you can do with the time you save."

Balancing different duties

While we can reasonably expect students to work hard and prioritize academic work, we also need to recognize that students have other legitimate commitments and needs. It's not easy to make your best vlogs while also tip-toeing around exams, assignments, and failure, but you can. I've successfully not failed out of school (yet)! Practicing both will require yourself up for success. Success will mean something different for everyone. It could mean taking the slow trek and lowering your college responsibilities.

You need to think about what it will take for you to succeed and design your college life around that. (Platt, 2018). Balancing being a full-time student at the University with her YouTube channel is no easy job. With almost 1,000 subscribers and a new video uploaded every few weeks, Midha said she stays organized with checklists and notebooks full of ideas. "It's so important to do things that you love and what sets a fire inside of you," Midha said. "For me, to be able to do this stuff, it makes me a much better and happier person. There (are) certain responsibilities that are so important, but if you manage everything and prioritize, I think you can do it." (Kramer, 2017).

Time Management

Time management is the ability to utilize time efficiently. Whether you are a student, businessman, office employee, serviceman, or any other, it is essential to make good use of one's individual time. The very first step towards success is efficient time management. As it is said that, "an early bird always has more options or luck mostly favors the prepared one." Students who remain at the top of their time & work produce greater opportunities in life.

 Become productive by effectively managing your time. The human brain remains fresh in the morning hours & can be an excellent time for studying subjects that need a lot of memorizing. Lazy afternoons can be useful for problem-solving subjects like Math, Accounts, or Business studies. Evening time can be best suited for learning literature subjects like Social Studies & understanding Science concepts. Ask yourself which time of the day will be most effective-early morning, afternoon, evening or late at night. To make the most of it, divide your time equally, and work accordingly.

Time Management is essential for every individual. Whether you are a student, homemaker, business person, or a working professional – if you can manage your time efficiently, you wouldn't be far from attaining your goals. Time is limited, once gone, it never comes back. It is thus important for you to make the most of it(2021, Ecole). "It takes probably from 48-72 hours," Klepacki said. "Sometimes I'll have to re-film clips because if I don't like it I scrap it and re-film it. It's mainly editing that takes a long time. My back-to -school haul has 2 1/2 hours of footage and I had to get it down to about 12 minutes." (Kramer, 2017).

Commitment

Commitments are very beneficial to productivity, but it's easy to get caught up in something that is part of creative pursuit and get burnt out because you don't evaluate yourself at any point. Making a commitment attached to a timeline gives you the freedom to explore and make adjustments as necessary. In a sense, it gives you an "out" while also allowing you to try something out. After your commitment timeline is over, you must honestly evaluate how the process of vlogging has been going. Make any course corrections you need to before going forward. (Cory Miller, 2017).

The art of time management skills has a significant impact on students' academic performances too (Oyuga, Raburu, & Aloka, 2016). For the students struggling to balance between academics and daily routines, a self-planner study time is a must, to avoid anxiety and ineffective time management (Adams & Blair, 2019). Nowadays, the students' interest is mostly towards social media. They are addicted to the internet and thus mismanage their time in unwanted activities (Syed Nasrullah & Khan, 2019).

Students also need to maintain their commitment to their vlogging career with varying standards from individuals. It's better to take a few small steps in the right direction than to make a huge leap forward only to slip backward" (tiny buddha, 2021). Consistency is the key to the success of the student." So write down your weekly general timetable and create a schedule. Include stuff such as Include things like when you'll do your homework when you'll review the things you've learned when you'll exercise, and so on. It's not possible to stick to a routine 100% of the time, but at least set up the framework to keep you focused and on track. (Wong, 2021)

Compatibility In Time

Students must follow a timetable to obtain higher grades for better time management. Time Management is a collection of values, activities, abilities, instruments, and processes that work together to help us get more value from our time and enhance the quality of our lives. (Aleena Qureshi, 2016) Self-management is the ap test term that suits time management, which helps us control optimum tension. A sense of equilibrium is required by successful time management. Students should prioritize between academic life, social life, and other life circumstances that may obstruct their academic achievements (Dr. A. Subramanian, 2016). (Sikhakhane, 2019).

Without much institutional support, students are charged with balancing the balance between work and life. To contribute to peaks and troughs in the student workload, higher education institutions are coordinated. Students are too lax in handling their time in the early days of entering a university or college (Scherer, Talley, and Fife 2017). They waste time on unwanted things that are not useful in any way academically. Students should be mindful of the loss of time and should be responsible for managing time more effectively by raising awareness of their attitudes, preparation, thought, and actions (Gayef, Tapan, & Sur, 2017).

Dedication

The quiet and calm undisturbed study environment, and uninterrupted availability of power supply and other facilities in the hostel, allowed the students to manage and spend more time and manage their studies (Zotorvie, 2017). Perseverance is probably the most important ingredient to success. More than innate ability, more than luck, more than well-placed connections, sticking to it is the most common attribute of the world's most accomplished people. Benjamin Franklin once said, "If you fail to prepare, prepare to fail". (Anthony, 2019). Imagine sharing your entire university experience with tens of thousands of strangers.

YouTuber Alice Thorpe (OhhItsOnlyAlice) has been doing that just that, posting three videos a week while studying in the UK, Her dedication to posting regular updates and bonding with her fans has seen her number of subscribers steadily climb towards 30,000 since she launched her channel four years ago, and she's even released her own merchandise to capitalize on her success. (Sabrina Collier, 2017). Making a commitment either to yourself or someone else reinforces what you're doing. It gives you the opportunity to truly be serious about it. Some people might shy away from making a commitment because they aren't too sure if it's something they can stick to. However, a commitment doesn't have to be long term. Saying you're going to do something for a specific amount of time will actually be helpful while keeping your expectations reasonable. (Cory Miller, 2017).

Development

Development is a natural recurring fundamental process in human life. The human population is constantly expanding and evolving, simultaneously developing and adapting to its ever-changing environment, now both physically and digitally. The development could occur in a plethora of ways, physically, mentally, spiritually, emotionally, digitally, and as well as environmentally, positive and negative.

Development is inevitable to those who work in the content creator/ industry, particularly content creators such as vloggers, influencers, and those who work under companies to produce digital media. Various skills are taught, learned, and developed amongst content creators as they further themselves in the industry. As these vloggers and influencers grow their platform, they are more susceptible to face challenges such as deadlines, attracting sponsorships from brands, engaging audiences, gaining likes, subscribers, followers, comments, just to name a few. Character development is also a factor in this topic, every YouTuber develops physically, emotionally, and mentally when they enter the platform or the life of vlogging.

As a vlogger, being patient and being open-minded is a must when there is feedback from the audience. Recommendations and suggestions must be entertained if they want to convince the audience to keep subscribing to their channel and watching their content. Negative feedback must be ignored or dealt with in a way that both parties are unharmed, this type of feedback is often useless to deal with, it is unstoppable and cannot be avoided. Understanding the audience is a big strategy to maintain a good relationship with oneself and the viewers, this way, the criticism will be taken as reasons to develop certain things with oneself, and the suggestions represent a guide on what to post next or what to include in the next video.

Taking suggestions can strengthen the bond between the vlogger and the audience. (Spencer, 2020). In this field of vloggers, character growth is also a consideration that focuses more on being a full-time influencer, being open-minded, and socially appropriate to persuade the viewer to be consistent and a true follower. Proper validation is also a consideration in this subject, as each YouTuber evolves as they reach the forum or the life of vloggers socially, physically, and financially. As a vlogger, while there is input from the viewer, being polite and open-minded is a must. If they want to persuade the viewer to keep contributing to their channel and viewing their content, tips and ideas must be encouraged.

Adapting Consistency

Consistency is critical to creating space for effective learning environments. Students can participate in learning more effectively when they have a clear understanding of classroom procedures and their importance. If students can name the expectations and receive consistent responses to their behavior they are in better control of their actions. Classroom expectations are important to academic achievement—consistent learning environments allow students to thrive academically by providing time and space to focus on the academic material. (Newman, 2019). Like exercising and eating healthy, you have to commit to it and do it regularly in order to see any lasting results. Vlogging is the same. However, if you're a creator, making videos whenever you feel like it and want to give yourself a kick in the behind, daily vlogging is a practice that will keep you accountable. You have to do it every day. No excuses. (Cox, 2021)

Boosting self-confidence

The confidence level in students is an important factor in educational success. As more students are facing bullying and harassment, confidence in students can suffer and when this occurs, grades often suffer. Building confidence in students is one of the most important step-parents can take to ensure an atmosphere of learning. If a child is suffering from bullying, immediate steps must be taken to correct the situation and rebuild the level of confidence in these students. When a child loses self-esteem, they may lose motivation in learning. By building confidence in students, parents can safeguard the most important ingredient to success that is motivation.

It's important to sound confident and natural when you are vlogging. It can take a lot of practice, but don't worry – it will get easier as you do it more often. Rather than trying to memorize what you are going to say, use a list of ideas that you can glance at to jog your memory. Know your facts and opinions, and then talk to the camera as if it were a friend.(Cambridge Assessment English, 2018)

Improve Creativity and Aspiration

Creativity is the most challenging thinking skill to acquire and also the most sought-after. We value it in our music, entertainment, technology, and other aspects of our existence. We appreciate and yearn for it because it enriches our understanding and can make life easier. (Ben Johnson, 2019), Self-confidence helps students vloggers be more approachable on the internet to gain fame in school; It can make them work on innovative activity. By aspirations, we mean the things students and vloggers hope to achieve for themselves in the future. To meet their aspirations about careers someday. Raising aspirations will also improve your attainment. (Kohli, 2020). They become more comfortable with their voice, beliefs, and opinions and often discover talents they didn't realize they possessed. These are valuable life skills our students will carry into the workforce. (EdTechTeam, 2019).

Creative ideas must be put into actions. Creativity is said to be the missing piece and the leading reason startups exist in the first place. (Mario Peshev, 2020). Creative ideas are the foundation of a pathway towards aspiration, those ideas one will begin with will create a breakthrough to a goal.

5. Conclusion

When it comes to studying or vlogging, a student must have priorities and can multitask. Still, when you multitask to be a certified Youtube Vlogger and be a top student, you tend to lose focus quickly. You get confused about what to choose right now and what can wait. So, in conclusion, it is okay to make videos, especially when creating videos is your passion because in the end, when your channel grows and is monetized, you may make big money. Monetization can help you a lot in your studies and life. Still, on the other hand, some students just wanted to share their videos to see some of the viewers.

In some cases, most of the students are thrilled at first and motivated to upload. When time goes by, they will stop uploading videos because they prioritize their future working hard in school. Still, some are just getting too tired to edit because there is a lot of process in making a good quality video. A good quality video has a higher chance of being viewed by some audiences. Another is the fame that they will have once they have gained popularity.

In summary, creating clips is excellent, mainly when producing videos is your interest even though you can make significant money in your education and career in the result when your platform grew and is made available to the public, this can benefit you a lot, and on the other path, some learners just decided to post their content to be able to see some of the viewers.

Most students are initially enthusiastic and inspired to publish in some situations. Still, as periods go by, they will skip uploading videos; although they prioritize their future, they strive hard and smart. Still, some are also getting too lazy to edit because there is a lot of producing a high-quality video. Some viewers have a better chance of seeing good content blogs and videos, but at the end of it all it is the experiences, character and circumstances a student underwent while pursuing his interest in vlogging or any form of social media will paveway to determine the path one chooses.
